The Sandra and Leon Levine Pediatric Inpatient Rehabilitation Center at Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital, P. 3
Dear donors and friends

“We make a living by what we get. We make a life by what we give.”
– Winston Churchill

As another fiscal year draws to a close, our board of directors, staff and I are again in awe of the generosity of our community. Once again, we presented the needs of Palmetto Health patients to you and you responded. You’ve changed many lives as a result.

Palmetto Health Foundation was supported by thousands of donors during 2018. Gifts helped support special projects, equipment and programs throughout Palmetto Health to benefit patients and families for years to come.

From life-saving diagnostic equipment like the portable CT scanner and the esophageal cancer equipment to educational support in the Simulation Center to recovery programs for children like inpatient rehabilitation to places of respite like Hannah’s Garden, Palmetto Health patients will have extraordinary care right here at home because of donors and friends like you. We are truly meeting the Palmetto Health vision:

“To be remembered by each patient as providing the care and compassion we want for our families and ourselves.”

Thank you for your gifts, your time and your support throughout another incredible year!

In health,

Samuel J. Tenenbaum
President

Support the Raymond P.H. Bynoe, MD Surgical Trauma Unit

The Trauma Center at Palmetto Health Richland is a busy place. In 2016-2017, the Trauma Center served more than 3,600 trauma patients, and it is the only Level I Trauma Center in the Midlands. Trauma team services are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week and include six critical care ambulances and an air ambulance with a specially trained crew.

Since 1980, the Trauma Center at Palmetto Health Richland has held a Level I designation, the highest ranking a Trauma Center can achieve. Now, with numerous advances in trauma treatment protocols, nursing standards and medical technology, Palmetto Health is expanding the Surgical Trauma Intensive Care Unit (STICU). Upon completion, the STICU at Palmetto Health Richland’s Trauma Center will be the most technologically advanced STICU in South Carolina.

The new private room, 18-bed STICU will feature special tunable lighting to help stabilize the circadian rhythm of patients who suffer from delirium during long-term hospitalization. Palmetto Health will be one of only two STICUs in the nation to have this technology. The unit also will implement modular boom columns that hold wires, tubes, gas, air and suction, which uses space more efficiently and allows patient beds to be moved to adjust for clinical conditions. Infection control tools will be another important feature in the new unit that will minimize bacteria, including a special light that constantly kills bacteria.

The new Raymond P.H. Bynoe, MD Surgical Trauma Unit will serve trauma patients from 16 counties in the Midlands and is slated to open this fall. The unit is named for Dr. Raymond Bynoe, who led the Trauma Team at Palmetto Richland for nearly 20 years.

The growth of the STICU would not be possible without the support of our generous donors.

To learn more or to make a donation to the new Raymond P.H. Bynoe, MD Surgical Trauma Unit at Palmetto Health Richland, contact Maria DeHart at 803-296-2175 or Maria.DeHart@PalmettoHealth.org. Your gift will help fund life-saving equipment and support programs and services for trauma patients and their families.

The Sandra and Leon Levine Pediatric Inpatient Rehabilitation Center at Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital

Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital is soon to be the home of South Carolina’s first pediatric inpatient rehabilitation program, thanks to the unwavering support of the community and beyond.

The Leon Levine Foundation (TLLF), located in Charlotte, N.C., recently made a $350,000 award to name the Sandra and Leon Levine Pediatric Inpatient Rehabilitation Center at Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital. TLLF seeks to improve the human condition by creating permanent, measurable and life-changing impact. The gift to support the Rehabilitation Center expands the foundation’s philanthropic footprint to South Carolina and honors the legacy of Leon Levine, founder, and his wife, Sandra.

Each year, there are more than 150,000 children’s visits to Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital. Some children experience a life-altering condition or injury and require specialized rehabilitation. Because an inpatient pediatric rehabilitation program does not currently exist in South Carolina, patients and families are faced with challenges when they have to go out-of-state for care. The Sandra and Leon Levine Pediatric Inpatient Rehabilitation Center at Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital will bridge this gap.

Tom Lawrence, executive director of The Leon Levine Foundation, said, “We know that many patients and their families have been traveling to Charlotte and receiving rehabilitation services from the wonderful team at Levine Children’s Hospital. While we are encouraged to hear that our investment in Charlotte has impacted children from numerous communities, TLLF believes it is essential for Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital to have a rehabilitation center of its own. Making quality health care more accessible to those in need is a key component of the foundation’s health care mission, and we’re excited to play a part in the growth of this tremendous hospital.”

The Center will be led by Colleen A. Wunderlich, MD, MSc, the state’s only pediatric physiatrist. Pediatric physiatrists are physicians with special training in physical medicine and rehabilitation, who specialize in prescribing medications, therapies and programs to restore skills and mobility to children facing temporary or permanent disabilities and loss of function.

“We are thrilled that The Leon Levine Foundation has chosen our Pediatric Inpatient Rehabilitation Center at Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital as their first opportunity to make a difference in the health care of South Carolina residents,” said Dr. Wunderlich.

“Making quality health care more accessible to those in need is a key component of the foundation’s health care mission. In this case, improving access to such care means giving kids the chance to stay in their own neighborhood while they receive treatment,” remarked Lawrence. “Illness can make life look a lot different, but our hope is that this inpatient rehabilitation center gives families one less thing to worry about.”

Construction of the Sandra and Leon Levine Pediatric Inpatient Rehabilitation Center is now underway, with an anticipated completion timeframe of Spring 2019. To support the Center, contact Diane Junis at Diane.Junis@PalmettoHealth.org or call 803-434.2832.
For 28 years, Walk for Life and Famously Hot Pink Half Marathon, 5K + 10K have been part of a movement to beat breast cancer in the Midlands of South Carolina. More than $9.5 million in proceeds have helped fund the latest in breast cancer prevention and treatment at Palmetto Health Breast Center in Columbia, S.C. Proceeds from the 2018 event will fund an Upright Stereotactic Breast Biopsy room, with 3D mammography technology, at Palmetto Health Breast Center at Richland as well as educational materials, breast bears and post-mastectomy camisoles.

Registrants who wear the 2018 Walk for Life and Famously Hot Pink Half Marathon, 5K + 10K event shirt to the S.C. State Fair Oct. 13-14 will receive free admission at the gate (valued at $10).

Survivor: Adrienne Wright

In 2012, Adrienne Wright learned she had cancer for the third time.

A two-time survivor of Hodgkins Lymphoma, Adrienne received radiation treatment that placed her at a higher risk for breast cancer later in life. Vigilant about her own health and well-being, Adrienne knew she needed to get a mammography when she first felt a lump in her breast.

“I’ve been doing mammograms since I was 28 or 29,” she said. “It showed up on a mammogram.”

Not interested in another round of chemotherapy or radiation, Adrienne opted to have a mastectomy. She was treated at Palmetto Health Breast Center, where she built relationships with the doctors and nurses who took care of her. Her experience with her nurse navigator, Dottye Wodogaza, was particularly meaningful. Always there when Adrienne needed support or guidance, Dottye led her through the treatment process with ease and grace.

And after a year and a half of recovery and reconstructive plastic surgery, Adrienne finally began to feel like her old self again. While her experience was challenging, she was well-supported throughout the treatment process. Her family and friends stood by her and helped her come to terms with her diagnosis. Now as a breast cancer survivor, she encourages everyone to get mammograms whenever they can.

“Please, please, please get a mammogram,” she said. “Don’t ignore it and don’t put it off. It’s one of the best screening techniques we have.”

Happy 35th birthday to Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital

September 28, 2018 marks the 35th birthday of Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital. Thank you to thousands of donors and supporters who helped create and sustain the first children’s hospital in South Carolina.

Just 35 years ago, a Midlands child’s emergency room visit was handled by any available physician, often using adult-sized equipment. In 1983, medical lab slips were hand-written and there were no computers or fax machines for communication between physicians, nurses, radiologists and medical staff. Babies born at 25 weeks’ gestation had almost no chance of survival. We are thankful for the dedication and vision of the founding physicians of Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital, South Carolina’s first pediatric hospital.

Family and friends of Tripp Weed continue his legacy

Shared by Debbie Turbeville, Tripp’s mom

Our family’s first experience with Palmetto Health Children’s Hospital was in September seven years ago when our oldest son was killed by an impaired driver and his 9-year-old son was severely injured. The staff treated our little guy with love and kindness, and supported our entire family during this devastating time. As we realized that all our grief, pain and anger needed somewhere to go, we established the Tripp Weed Foundation in his memory. Our annual golf tournament continues to receive the amazing and humbling support of Tripp’s many friends and family. Their generosity has enabled us to give back to the Children’s Hospital in gratitude for the care they extended to all of us.

Why I joined The Cavalry

by Jean Cecil Frick

During my senior year of high school in Spartanburg, my mother was diagnosed with stage IV cancer. She had to spend several days away from home each month in Atlanta receiving treatment. This experience taught me the importance of having life-saving cancer treatments in the communities where we live and work. It allows you to receive the indispensable support you need surrounded by family and friends.

In order to carry on my mother’s legacy, I am committed to making sure others have the opportunity to receive the treatment they need in their own community. Now that the Midlands is my home, I have found that community of support through The Cavalry and Palmetto Health Foundation.

YEAR-END Giving

contributed by Ron Smith, Thompson & Associates

Most of us are getting ready to wrap up our financial year. Year-end planning could allow you to redirect some of your tax dollars to a charity of your choice. Practically speaking, a tax deduction is really a redirection of your tax dollar.

The history of our government is filled with speeches from our leaders on the benefits of charitable organizations. You make a gift to charity. You get a tax deduction, and organizations in the community benefit. You may want to review the various types of gifts and their benefits to you-

Bequests

As you prepare for the end of the year, we hope you will include a charitable organization like Palmetto Health Foundation in your estate plan. Many have found that this is the one way they can give a major gift to help those in need. There are many reasons why a bequest to charity can benefit you and your heirs. That’s right; a bequest can benefit your heirs as well as the charity. With estate tax rates at 40 percent, this is one area you will want to work on as the year end approaches. We would love to share with you in greater detail the benefits of making a bequest.

Appreciated Assets

Real Estate

One of the most popular gifts to charity is real estate. You can take a deduction for the full fair market value of the gift if you have held it more than a year. It may seem hard to believe, but you can take a deduction based on today’s prices instead of the lower price you actually paid. Also, you can avoid all of your capital gains tax. So in other words, you may have paid $10,000 for a piece of land which is now worth $100,000. You will avoid all of the capital gains exposure on the $90,000 gain and receive a tax deduction based on the fair market value of $100,000.

Securities

Gifts of highly appreciated stocks or securities maybe one of the best ways to give to a tax-exempt organization. You can deduct the fair market value of the gift even though you might have paid a great deal less. It is important to remember that it must have been held for over a year. You will also avoid all of the capital gains as well. Securities and stock gifts may be more advantageous to give than cash!

A Gift to Charity May Provide You an Income for Your Life

Life income gifts are very attractive to individuals who depend on Certificates of Deposit (CDs) or other types of appreciated assets. They would like to donate to charity, but they are worried that they may not have enough income for their needs for the rest of their lives. They are surprised to discover that there are gifts that can often increase their income and generate a charitable deduction. Here is a brief description of a few examples.

Unitrust

A Unitrust provides an income stream for one or two lives or for a term of years. The donor receives an income based on the specific percentage of the fair market value of the assets in the Unitrust each year. The income would increase if the assets appreciate, but the income would decrease if the assets depreciate. In addition to an income stream, the donor gets a tax deduction in the year the Unitrust is created.

Annuity Trust

An Annuity Trust is very similar to a Unitrust, except it will pay the same amount each year. The dollar amount would never increase or decrease, as long as there are sufficient assets inside the trust to make the payment.

Charitable Gift Annuity

A Charitable Gift Annuity is very similar to an Annuity Trust. A donor makes a gift to a nonprofit organization and receives fixed payments back for life. In addition, the donor would receive a charitable deduction in the year the Charitable Gift Annuity was created.
